ART OF ARCHITECTURE

Atlanta's Arabian market place 120

The fastest growing city in the south grows into its first regional shopping center—designed to make shopping easy and exciting.

"Action" architecture 132

G.M. Kallmann reports on the new generation of architects who are shocking their elders with fierce, direct, and brutal action in design.

The concrete orchard 138

Paul Rudolph's lab is the latest sign of Yale's architectural renaissance.

The monotonous curtain wall 142

Applied like wallpaper, the prefab panel has become a substitute for architecture. Needed: creative design in the factory and at the site.

Barns for a harvest past 151

America's most genuine native architecture may be seen in the old farm buildings of the Genesee Valley in New York State—a gallery.

Bright star for worship 164

Architect Ralph Rapson encloses a church with eight tall triangles of glass.

Sculpting with sprayed concrete 166

The shell-like structures of Architect John Johansen indicate the dramatic possibilities of concrete gunned directly on a steel armature.

CITY BUILDING

Expressway blight 159

Cities with expressways in the offing should look at Boston's central artery for a sharp lesson in how not to build them—a criticism.

BUSINESS OF BUILDING

1960: another big year for building 128

Although 1959 will be hard to beat, building activity in 1960 will probably set a new record of more than $55 billion—a FORUM forecast.

The 100 biggest clients 148

One fifth of all business building is for the industry's key customers.

TECHNOLOGY

Electric heating puts on the heat 169

The heating of the future is moving in today on the big excess capacity of electric power built up by the boom in summer air conditioning.
