ART OF ARCHITECTURE

A shimmering set of industrial stacks 88

A delightful contrast to the blackened chimneys of another era, the stacks of an S.O.M.-designed textile plant for Deering Milliken behave like fountains.

Arena for the auto age 98

Detroit's $54 million Cobo Hall can hold four trade shows, a three-ring circus, and 30 meetings all at once. Architecturally it is not quite so resplendent.

Noteworthy buildings 108

Vigorous roofs on formal façades 118

The expressive roofscape of one of the Middle East's greatest mosques—a gallery.

Fortress of faith 130

The rugged forms and syncopated details of Le Corbusier's "La Tourette" give the Dominicans a stronghold and France an architectural landmark.

1961: a $58 billion year for building 102

After a minor setback, construction activity will resume its upward climb next year, topping the 1959 record—a FORUM forecast.

Aid for the aged hospital 112

Some experts suggest ways to attack a startling $3.6 billion worth of obsolescence in U.S. health facilities.

CITIES

Toledo gets a plaza 106

Libbey-Owens-Ford's new headquarters is both a showcase and a good citizen.

Sacramento's second gold rush 124

Threatened by new scatteration, California's Capitol restakes its colorful old claim with an ambitious renewal plan.

TECHNOLOGY

The theater automatique 90

Harvard's new Loeb Theater wraps three theaters and the gamut of advanced stage, lighting, and rigging systems into a single 515-seat package.

The economy of composite design 136

Making slab and beam work together, this relatively new construction technique saves materials, space, and money.
