

Contents

Cover

From the first cosmos to the cosmogonic mode.

Announcement of names and types of contribution of individuals to the KAWASE-Matsuri at CHICHIBU, Japan, on July 20. The drawing of a bundle stands here symbolically for 'offering'. Superimposed, a bundle: acc to Gunter Nitschke's interpretation 'the first cosmos' and, later, 'cosmogonic' model.

Summaries/French

- 744 Letters. Books
- 747 SHIME: Binding/Unbinding
An investigation by Gunter Nitschke into the origin of, and relationships between, man's building, sign-systems and religious beliefs in East Asia; occasioned by the sixtieth renewal of the Sun and Food Goddess at ISE in 1973.
- 792 Play net
Mark Fisher describes the AA Nice Ideas Unit's project for a play-net for an adventure playground in N. London.
- 794 Students' self-build home in Portsmouth
Trevor James and Andrew Rabeneck contribute a third article in their series on forms of housing which offer greater choice for occupants. The project was designed, managed and erected by three students as a home for themselves, and the accommodation proved ideal for students in that it was of a high standard as well as cheap, costing each occupant only £1.80 a week.
- 797 Planning
Development snakes & ladders. Dobry on demolition.
- 799 Round-up
Metacommunication. Converting a bus. Evolution of lines
Self-sustaining. Black hole in Chile. Israel goes ahead
- 801 Arts
Germany in London. Stained glass by the M². Jasper Johns. Chile in London.
- 807 Summaries/German