

Architectural Design Vol XLV, 7/1975

Contents

Cover

Photomontage by Trevor Sutton based on the work of the Bofill Taller de Arquitectura (see page 402)

- 393 Protest
David Wild tilts at architectural education.
- 394 Letters . Books
- 399 Creation, creativity and architecture
Frei Otto's address to the UIA Congress in Madrid.
- 400 Megastructures
P. Reyner Banham, at the UIA Congress, spoke about Megastructure, the subject of his forthcoming book.
- 402 Bofill Taller de Arquitectura
In May, AD published a feature about Piano & Rogers' philosophy of problem-solving in architecture by the use of technology. The approach of the Barcelona Taller de Arquitectura, lead by Ricardo Bofill, is totally opposite, starting always from a poetic concept. Geoffrey Broadbent describes the development of this remarkable group.
- 418 Willis, Faber & Dumas: Ipswich Centre
Foster Associates are the architects of the beautiful solar-glass clad building whose winding outline follows the contours of the site and whose low profile/deep-plan form is an excellent vehicle for saving energy.
- 420 Newcastles in the air.
Newcastle has undertaken ambitious schemes for urban renewal over the past twelve years. In the second of two articles on the city Diana Rowntree looks at the current situation.
- 426 De-architecturization: the iconography of disaster
James Wines, American architect, explores the recent imagery of disaster, and proposes a way to translate it into architectural form.
- 429 How to divert the course of architecture in cartoon form
Chris Fawcett meditates on 'irony' and 'image' and the current architectural urge towards 'no form', with illustrations of the sort of prodigious ideas which seem to be the Japanese architect's escape from reality.
- 433 Alternative technology
Two articles by Ian Hogan and one by Witold Rybczynsky, trace the emergence of the AT movement and the threat it now faces of being subverted by the Establishment. Henry Moss and Ian Hogan review major books on alternative technology.
- 438 Housing
Container chalets. Israeli housing forms. After the bulldozers, what next?
- 442 Planning
'The County Report': a case for coherent local authority planning.
- 444 Round up
Alternatives for Les Halles. UIA congress material. UIA student competition. John Johansen's house. Clockwork orange. Saddleback structures. Bathrooms and water-closets. Pedestrian malls. Community action and video conferences.
- 449 Arts
Kenneth Martin. Shakers Claes Oldenberg.