713 Letters

714 Books

717 Originators

Barbara Goldstein talks to Rick Wurman about his ideas of making the city observable to its inhabitants.

718 Housing by people

'Housing economies: localised resourcefulness versus centralised productivity'. The fourth of seven essays by John F.C. Turner in which he attempts to clarify issues of housing and human settlement.

723 Sulphur building

Witold Rybczynski and the Minimum Cost Housing Group (MCHG) of Montreal argue the case for sulphur as a building material and present recent projects using it.

728 Milton Keynes

AD's two previous special issues on Milton Keynes in 6/73 and 8/74 were devoted respectively to the design of the new city as a whole and to its central area. In this issue of AD, the Milton Keynes Development Corporation reviews the new city in the throes of the building process. It starts with a panorama of the physical construction, with its immense disruptions of the area. It goes on to dwell on the even more important but much more delicate task of building a new community.
